THIS MONTH'S FAQs: TRYOUTS

Thank you for your patience as we work to improve the tryout process. We strive to make decisions with positive intentions and in the best interests of all players. While there's always room to learn and improve, we appreciate your understanding as we navigate challenges with limited resources and first-year board roles. Our commitment to creating a fair, enjoyable experience for every player remains our priority, and we're grateful for your trust as we enhance our approach each season.

QUESTION: Why are some kids pulled from the ice during tryouts?

ANSWER: This year, players were divided into two evenly matched groups to address limited movement between groups in past tryouts. The top two skaters from each group were pulled, creating more opportunities for others to be evaluated. Players taken off the ice weren't guaranteed a spot on the AA team; evaluators simply had enough information on them. Removing dominant players also allowed for a fairer assessment of others.

QUESTION: Why were additional evaluators added?

ANSWER: We aimed to use only non-FLHA evaluators for objectivity, but scheduling and staffing challenges required last-minute additions, including FLHA evaluators, to manage two rinks effectively.

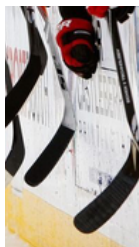

QUESTION: Why was there a delay in posting A & B tryout lists?

ANSWER: Ideally, all placements would be posted simultaneously. However, B1 and B2 teams had practice the next day, necessitating an earlier release. For next year, we'll consider reserving extra ice time to align team postings.

QUESTION: Why was a 4th Pee Wee team added last minute?

ANSWER: Initial plans for three teams were based on 48 registered players, but late registrations increased the total. To maintain manageable team sizes, the Board added a fourth team and worked with D2 to adjust schedules and tournament plans.

STICK TAP SHOUTOUTS

Just a quick shoutout to our amazing concession manager, the team of trainers, and every person who pitched in (especially those who put in extra hours!) to make Flake Jam such a success. You all crushed it, and your hard work didn't go unnoticed. Thanks for making it such a successful event!
